

VOIP COMMUNICATIONS

CUSTOMER CODE OF PRACTICE

1. Introduction

This Code of Practice (CoP) provides a statement of the services available from VoIP Communications (VoIP); a trade name of Blueridge Telecom Systems, LLC registered in Delaware, United States, number 3452834. This CoP explains how we provide these services, and the key support services and company policies that underpin them. It describes your relationship with VoIP – how you can, and should, contact VoIP when you need help or want to change the services you have, and how we will respond. It also describes what you should do in the unlikely event of something going wrong.

The CoP is consistent with European and UK legislation covering such codes, and has been approved by Ofcom, the UK regulator of communications. We review the CoP regularly and at least annually to ensure that it continues to comply with European and UK legislation and where necessary seek guidance from Ofcom. VoIP is a member of the Communications and Internet Services Adjudication Scheme (CISAS).

At VoIP, we gather and store information about our customers such as who you are, where you live, what services you use, and who is responsible for paying your bill. Some of this information will be used by VoIP to confirm that we are speaking to the appropriate person when we receive incoming calls. If you would like someone else to make a complaint on your behalf, please ensure that person is familiar with your specific gathered and stored information. Alternatively, you may inform VoIP directly that someone else will be pursuing a complaint on your behalf.

Independent adjudication

If we have not reached an agreed settlement within three months of receiving your complaint, you have the option of referring your complaint for independent consideration to CISAS (the communications and internet services adjudication scheme) operated by the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators. We are required to provide access to an Ofcom approved dispute resolution procedure of which there are currently two- Otelo (the Office of the Telecommunications Ombudsman) and CISAS (the communications and internet services adjudication scheme) operated by the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators. BRT is a member of CISAS. CISAS will take evidence from both you and VoIP, and will make an independent decision based purely on the merits of the case. The decision is binding on VoIP, but the customer can reject it and take its dispute to court.

CISAS' goal is to settle your complaint or dispute in fair, reasonable and unbiased manner, while utilising the relevant law and any relevant codes of practice. Compensation may be awarded in individual cases.

What complaints or disputes can CISAS deal with?

- Problems relating to most products and services offered to residential and small business customers; problems relating to products and service for disabled people, including access to text relay and free directory inquiries; and
- Complainants must apply to the scheme within three (3) months of receiving the last reply on the matter from VoIP.
